

IMAGE. SYSTEMS. AI.

Beyond copy.

Something stopped making sense.

The messaging drifted. The internal logic frayed. What the organisation is doing and what it's saying no longer quite match. This is not a planning problem. It's a coherence problem.

Incoherence compounds.

Campaigns that don't land. Briefs that circle. Audiences who disengage. Teams who can't articulate what they actually do.

The longer it runs, the more expensive it becomes to fix.

ME finds where coherence broke down and makes the underlying system legible again.

Through writing, image, and AI.

Beyond copy.

The work begins upstream.

Before anything is written or made, ME identifies where the breakdown occurred: in the language, the structure, the audience relationship, or the internal logic of the organisation.

What follows is precise. A rebuilt system that says what it means.

The practice works three ways.

Coherence Audit

A diagnostic that maps where language, structure, and audience relationship have broken down. You leave with a clear picture of the problem and what it requires to fix.

Narrative Architecture

The foundational language your organisation uses to describe itself. Built once. Applied across briefs, pitches, proposals, and public communication.

AI and Image Systems

Custom workflows built around your specific communication needs. Designed to produce consistent, on-brand output without requiring a full creative team.

Ongoing work is available on retainer.

Every project starts with a conversation. ashrafjohaardien@me.com

Most organisations
say less than they mean.
ME fixes that.

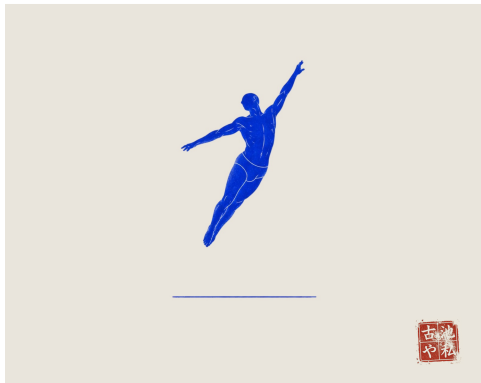

ME works with organisations whose communication has stopped keeping pace with what they actually do.

ME 古池や is led by Ashraf Johaardien. Thirty years across theatre, writing, cultural production, and institutional communication. The practice works at the point where language stops carrying weight and something needs to be rebuilt.

The through-line is systems. How meaning is structured, where it breaks, and how to fix it.

The work implies the capability.

If you recognise the problem, the next step is a conversation.
